

How do I finish them?

These mouldings can be painted or stained – including acrylic or enamel. Any paint finish can be applied - including ragging, marbling, aging and gliding. They are also suitable for use with crackle finishes.

When painting, we recommend that they are given an acrylic undercoat. Once the undercoat is dry they can be painted in the normal way.

It is also possible to stain the moulding using a standard wood stain. If staining is required do not undercoat them first, cover with a final coat of varnish.

If the mouldings are to be used in steamy areas (bathroom and kitchens) we recommend that they be painted with enamel paint.

We can supply your choice from over 600 designs featured in our Efex By Design catalogue and offer an installation and painting service too.
